

Saunders Sermons

Grammy award winning trombonist, singer and songwriter, Saunders Sermons is an American musician with a powerfully brassy sound. His sensual voice imbues recordings with a timeless feeling of classic style. He has recorded and toured with such wildly popular artists as The Tedeschi Trucks band, Maxwell, Jay-Z, Mary J. Blige, Diddy, Fantasia, Roy Hargrove, Mike Phillips, Kenny Lattimore, Tyler Perry, Jose James, Nicholas Payton, Jessy J, Soul Cycle and many more.

Ever-dedicated to quality sounds and innovative musicianship, Sermons' unique blend of artistry is a fusion of jazz, pop, R&B and Hip Hop. In 2012 he toured with Tyler Perry in Madea Gets a Job, which was followed by an international tour with the bluesy, Tedeschi Trucks Band. Sermons' uncanny ability to perform various styles of music among industry titans such as Perry is just one of the qualities that satisfies his current fans and continues to garner him new ones.

Born and raised in Miami, Florida, Sermons began singing at the age of five in his grandfather's Pentecostal church where his talent was noticed and progressed to playing the trombone by age 11. Since then, Sermons has developed into an established independent recording artist with a formidable reputation as a highly sought-after musician. Over the years, he has managed a jet-setting schedule of live performances, television appearances and extensive studio recordings that spanned across more than 100 cities and dozens of countries. His work has taken him all over the United States and into countless countries in Europe, Asia and South America.

Sermons continues to work toward creating the perfect union of his two loves: jazz and hip-hop. Later this year, he will release, "Just What She Needs," the highly expressive follow-up to his critically acclaimed debut album, "Classic Delight." Soulful sounds and masterful melodies are unbound when Sermons picks up his horn and unleashes the mountains of passion within him.
